An everlasting tribute to John Landry, Jr.

A lasting memorial to John Landry, Jr. was unveiled during a moving ceremony on Saturday morning. Approximately 300 people attended the ceremony, which, in addition to speakers, included a 21-gun salute and buglers, and bagpipers. Landry was killed in action in Iraq in March 2007. The monument is located in the grassy area between Silver Lake and Main Street. The Landry family (left insert) was grateful for the beautiful ceremony and the outpouring of public support. Wilmington's Veterans' Agent wishes to thank the police for traffic control, and the DPW crews for their hard work, the participation of the Police and Fire Honor Guards.

Big Brother takes the bus

All school buses now equipped with safety cameras

By CHARITY B. LEGVOLD
WILMINGTON - "Lights... CAMERAS... action!" As Wilmington Public Schools opened a new school year Tuesday, they also unveiled their newest use of technology - this time for enhanced student safety on school buses. Following a very successful pilot program last winter involving two high school buses, this fall there will be a camera in each of the 18 buses that make up the district's transportation fleet. School officials received signed permission forms for students on both buses for the test last winter and while cameras were running on those buses, the School Committee worked diligently to put a policy of procedures in place to govern their use.

"It proved what we thought," said Superintendent Joanne Benton of the test run. "It cut down on misbehavior on the bus."

When transportation contracts went out to bid, Wilmington included on-board cameras as part of the bid process. North Reading

Town to defend decision

ABCC hearing set for Sonny's

WILMINGTON - A local merchant is taking his case against the Board of Selectmen to the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC).

Selectmen voted in July to deny a request for a transfer of a liquor license from the now-defunct B&B Liquor Station to Sonny's Mobil On The Run. Selectmen cited traffic, lack of available parking, proximity to a "dangerous" intersection, accessibility of alcohol to minors, and the expressed views of local residents.

Sonny's is located at the corner of West Street and Lowell Street, just yards from Interstate 93.

Derek Santini, who is the President of the Santini Family, Inc., which owns Sonny's, however, wrote to the ABCC that the selectmen's decision was, "...predetermined, arbitrary, capricious, and not supported by any facts."

Affected by pig odors?

Meeting open to Tewksbury & Wilmington

TEWKSBURY - The Tewksbury Board of Selectmen are hosting a neighborhood meeting Thursday, September 11, at 7:00 p.m. at the Trahan School, located at 12 Salem Road in Tewksbury, for all people affected by the odor from local piggeries.

All Tewksbury and Wilmington neighbors and their families are invited to attend.

A representative of the Massachusetts Chapter of the Sierra Club will attend the meeting and speak on some of the issues. The Sierra Club is widely known as the oldest and most influential environmental group in the US and Canada. Representative Jim Miceli of Wilmington and Tewksbury also plans to attend the meeting.

Letters to the editor

Sincere appreciation

Dear Editor:
The Mauriello Family would like to express their sincere appreciation to the Wilmington Police Department, the Fire Department and Emergency Medical Technicians for their assistance over the past year. The past year was one of many emergency 9-1-1 calls, all of which were responded to in a quick professional and compassionate way. We would also like to thank the people of the community for their support, cards, and food sent to Maria during her illness.

After a long bout with cancer, Maria passed on last week. The tribute given to her at the outpouring of people at her wake and funeral will long be remembered.

We are proud to have called Wilmington our home for these past forty years.

Thank You
The Mauriello Family

Matos does not represent Martial Arts

Dear Editor,
Last week a Olympic Tae Kwon Do competitor, Angel Matos of Cuba, took out his anger for being disqualified due to taking too much time for an injury by striking out at the referee, Chakir Chelbat of Sweden, who needed stitches to repair his lip. Fidel Castro came to Matos' defense expressing his "solidarity" with the athlete from his country.

I have been training in the martial arts (traditional Karate) for almost three decades and think this poor sportsmanship was despicable. It was more of a statement of the country he represented than of the sport itself.

Karate, TaeKwonDo and other martial arts studied by millions stress self-discipline, focus, and respect. The disconnect that Mr. Matos showed between his art and his actions was stark. The Olympic games started out with an incredible opening ceremony, featuring legions of Tai Chi practitioners demonstrating both their physical prowess and disciplined synchronicity. It is a shame that for years to come, many people will be watching this childish and bearish behavior on YouTube.

Sincerely,
Todd Keane
owner and operator of The Academy of Traditional Karate, Wilmington

7th Annual Walk of Hope to Benefit ALS - Lou Gehrig's Disease scheduled for September 6th

WAKEFIELD - Scores of walkers are gearing up for the upcoming 7th annual Walk of Hope for ALS, a 3.5-mile walk around Lake Quannapowitt in Wakefield. The walk, which will benefit The Angel Fund, will be held on Saturday, September 6th 2008, beginning with registration at 9 a.m. followed by the start of the walk at 11 a.m.

The Angel Fund is an independent, nonprofit organization dedicated to supporting Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS) research at the Cecil B. Day Neuromuscular Research Center. ALS, more commonly known as Lou Gehrig's Disease, is a progressive, always fatal neuromuscular disease. ALS leads to muscle weakness and as it progresses, results in total paralysis and the inability to speak and swallow while the mind and senses remain intact.

Walkers of all abilities are encouraged to participate as individuals or as a team. We encourage walkers to collect pledges. Teams that raise $1000 or more are eligible to be entered as a team into a prize drawing. Each of the first 500 walkers to register will receive a t-shirt.

To register as a walker or to register a team, please call The Angel Fund at 781-245-7070, or log-on to either the organization's website at www.theangelfund.org to download a brochure and a team captain's manual.

Donations to the Angel Fund can also be made online, or can be sent to The Angel Fund, 649 Main Street, Wakefield, MA 01880. All donations should be made payable to The Angel Fund.

The Angel Fund conducts other fund raising events throughout the year which, along with individual and corporate donations, have been beneficial in helping make significant strides in ALS research. For a list of upcoming events, visit The Angel Fund website.

Canine Corner

Dog Sense and Sensibility

Dogs use the same senses we do to learn about and navigate in the world, but they do it a bit differently. Our typical priority is sight, sound, touch, smell, then taste. Dogs typically use smell then sound, sight, touch and taste to navigate and learn about the world. When dogs live with us they relate to us as if we were dogs too.

Dogs don't really know they're dogs and they don't know we're people. Dogs, living with us, basically think we're the same as they are except we can seem handicapped. Dogs can only look at things from a canine perspective so they evaluate our behavior from a canine standpoint. In the sensory tests we make pretty poor dogs.

Smell: Rover wins paws down. He probably thinks I can't smell anything. It's estimated that his sense of smell is up to 100,000 times better. Imagine walking into a restaurant and smelling each individual ingredient in each dish as a separate smell. To us the smells are all jumbled together. Rover however, can detect and separate every smell. He has a special cavity in his nose which captures smells and he also has special pathways from this cavity to his brain to process and store the information about the smells. This amazing capacity is almost beyond our imagination, but given this ability, it's not surprising that it's their primary sense.

Hearing: Rover hears our car when it turns onto our street, seven houses away. Even if he's sleeping he wakes up and goes near the door. I usually don't hear the car at all; I don't know that Cathy is home until I hear the door to the house. I'm not a very good watchdog. Rover's hearing is about ten times better than mine. He can discriminate between sounds even in his sleep. I've seen him wake up and look towards the window and a little while later someone walks by.

Sight: Advantage me, right? Wrong or maybe we'll call it a draw. Rover can spot something moving at much greater distances, but I'm better at discriminating details, especially up close. I can discern colors better. Rover sees colors similarly to someone with color-blindness. His eye sight however is much better at dusk and in the dark.

Touch: I think I have an advantage here. Our finger tips are loaded with nerve endings which allow us to feel textures although Rover also seems to feel textures. Some dogs get a bit nervous when they have to walk on a surface that they're not used to. Is it because of the way it feels? That's a distinct possibility.

Taste: Human's have a lot more taste buds on our tongues than dogs do. But I don't really learn about the world by tasting it. Puppies and dogs will taste things, especially if the smell is enticing. I hear from people that their dogs are eating things they shouldn't. Socks seem to be a favorite with some dogs and I'm guessing it's because our scent is really embedded in the socks. Even I can 'scent' the socks, that's enough for me to not want them in my mouth but there must be something Rover finds irresistible about the smell. They will eat rocks, bark, dirt and other things that probably taste like rocks and dirt.

Ok so I am not a very good dog from a sensory standpoint. What does that have to do with my relationship with Rover? Rover already thinks I'm another dog, he interprets my body language from a canine perspective, he probably thinks I have the same sensory experiences he does. This puts me at a disadvantage when it comes to doing dog things. As I said I'm not a very good watchdog and part of the leader's job is to keep the pack safe.

Games: When people play dog games they often lose. Chase is a favorite dog game. I know that I'm much slower than Rover. If I chase him there is no doubt as to the outcome. My two legs are no match for his four. I am not nearly as agile as he is either.

Tug-of-War is another favorite. Rover cheats. He'll inch his teeth up the rope, give me a quick nip and I lose again. Even when he doesn't cheat, he grips the rope with his teeth and shakes his head in an effort to make me lose my grip, and he's strong!

Wrestling. Maybe I can win this one as long as I can avoid Rover's nails and open mouthed teeth. If not, I'm a loser.

Ok so maybe I can't win doggy games. So what? Play is one important way that dogs figure out where they are in the packs hierarchy. The dogs that win the games rise up the hierarchy and those that lose, drop down. An interesting note however, is that in a purely canine pack, leaders don't usually participate in the games. They let the subordinates play and wrestle and do their version of doggy Olympics but the leaders rarely take part. Hmmm, there must be a message in that. Actually there is:

Because the leaders don't play those games, they don't have to prove that they're the fastest or strongest. They gain the position in more subtle ways such as how they carry themselves. They are also consistent. They are also calm and exude a quiet confidence. In other words, they act like leaders. This can be a challenge for us as we're often looking at the relationship differently. We look at it from a human perspective, not a canine one.

Once we understand Rover's world a bit more and consciously choose to spend time in his world we get a different outlook. When he views us as his leader and teacher he'll be calmer and happier. We see it happen day after day. We all know the results...

Your Two Cents...

Shame on Tewksbury!

The South Fire Station remains closed and yet the Selectmen vote to fill two library positions. What is wrong with this picture. Shouldn't public safety come first?

Tewksbury

The John Landry dedication was awesome. Thumbs up to Lou and to the whole town. It was great to see so many people there. This town has truly honored that young man correctly.

Wilmington

So, half of the pig farm is in Wilmington? That figures. No wonder we can smell it. When will Wilmington's health officials pick up on Tewksbury's lead?

Wilmington

There are to many Dunkin Donuts in this town.

The Tewksbury Garden Club recently completed a beautification project outside the Town Hall Annex, which was made possible by a community development grant received from National Garden Clubs Organization and Principal Financial Group. The grant "Let's Go Native" allowed the garden club to remove the overgrown shrubs and replace them with flowers and new bushes native to the Tewksbury area. WHS Class of 83

It's been 25 years, let's get together

WILMINGTON - The Wilmington High School Class of 1983, 25th Year Reunion will be held at Hillview Country Club in North Reading on November 8, 2008. The reunion will begin at 7:00 p.m. and will run through to midnight.

Recycling enforcement

TEWKSBURY - Beginning September 1, 2008, the Town of Tewksbury will begin recycling enforcement. The goal is to increase recycling tonnage that is collected in Tewksbury's municipal curbside recycling programs and save funds which can be used by the School Department later in the fiscal year. This will be accomplished through an education and enforcement program to insure that residents are separating recyclables from trash to the fullest extent possible, and placing them curbside for collection. This will be accomplished by the Town's Mandatory Recycling Enforcement Coordinator, who is shared with Billerica and Chelmsford where this has already started. The funds for the Coordinator were received through a grant from the Department of Environmental Protection.

The main focus will be to make sure that cardboard is prepared properly (flattened and no more than 2 ft. x 3 ft) for pick up. The Recycling Enforcement Coordinator will also be checking to see that recyclables are being placed curbside for pick up and are prepared properly. This includes all glass, metal and plastic items as well as paper. If an item is placed curbside and is not properly prepared for pick up, the item will be left behind and a sticker will be placed on it indicating the problem.

The recycling calendar, which can be found on the town's website www.tewksbury.info (<http://www.tewksbury.info/re-cycle/>) under Recycle Committee, explains how most items need to be prepared to be placed curbside; however, if there is a question you can call Allied Waste 1-800-442-9006 Customer Service or you can call the Town Manager's Office 978-640-4300.

Your Two Cents...

Shame on Tewksbury!

The South Fire Station remains closed and yet the Selectmen vote to fill two library positions. What is wrong with this picture. Shouldn't public safety come first?

Tewksbury

The John Landry dedication was awesome. Thumbs up to Lou and to the whole town. It was great to see so many people there. This town has truly honored that young man correctly.

Wilmington

So, half of the pig farm is in Wilmington? That figures. No wonder we can smell it. When will Wilmington's health officials pick up on Tewksbury's lead?

Wilmington

There are to many Dunkin Donuts in this town.

'Uniquely Massachusetts' is theme of photo contest

Entries are currently being accepted for the MMA's sixth annual photography contest, the theme of which is "Uniquely Massachusetts."

Photographs will be judged primarily on their ability to answer the question, "What in your city/town is unique to Massachusetts?" Additional weight will be given to geographic and seasonal breakdown in an attempt to represent each region of the state and all four seasons equally in the calendar.

All entries must include one to three sentences describing the significance of the photo.

The top prize will be selected for the front cover of the MMA's 2009 calendar, with 13 runners-up chosen for each month of the year and the back cover.

Criteria

- Contest is open to all who wish to participate.
- Submissions will be judged primarily on how well they capture the calendar theme. Secondary judging criteria will include geographic and seasonal diversity.
- Entries should be horizontal color photographs, ideally 10x8 (recommended, but not required). Black-and-white photographs will be accepted as well, but will only be judged as a possible front or back cover shot.

- Digital photos will be accepted, but must be taken at the highest possible resolution to ensure quality when enlarged to fit the calendar.

- All digital entries must be printed on 8.5-by-11-inch paper for judging. (Digital entrants will be contacted if the electronic file is required.)

- Entry deadline is Oct. 13, 2008. Send entries to: Calendar Contest, MMA, One Winthrop Square, Boston, MA 02110.

- By submitting photos, entrants agree to permit the MMA to publish the photos in its annual calendar, which is distributed free to municipal officials in Massachusetts, and to post the photos on the MMA Web site.

- Those who wish to have their photos returned after the calendar is published in January should indicate so on the back of each submission and include a self-addressed envelope.

For more information, contact Kristi Williams at the MMA.

Dr. Smith will conduct a podiatry clinic on Friday, August 29, beginning at 8:30 a.m. Participants are asked to check one's appointment time. It is suggested that one arrive about 10 minutes early just in case the doctor is running ahead of schedule.

- Friday, September 5 - Brazilian Embroidery - at 9:30 a.m. (this class is full);

On Thursday, September 11, the Carnation Belles will be traveling to Salem, MA. The first stop will be the Witch Museum. The trip cost is $50 per person and includes motorcoach transportation. Since time is growing short one should sign up as soon as possible.

Tickets are available for the September 12 Friends Senior Center Dance. Entertainment for the evening will be the Ben Angelo Band.

Responses on trip interests lists have been good. At present there are no trip confirmations. New trips will be noted as they are confirmed. Watch for details at the Senior Center this Thursday.

The Friends are also planning a New Year's Eve Party for December 31. The event is in the planning stages. However, an interest list is being compiled to see just how many will be interested in attending. It is estimated that the cost of the event will be around $40/$45 per person. Please place your name on the list if you think you may attend.

Cruise for a Cure Ride

Local motorcycle enthusiasts to raise funds for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation

TYNGSBORO - The Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is hosting a motorcycle ride on Sunday, September 7. The Cruise for a Cure will help raise funds to find a cure for those living with cystic fibrosis.

Ten years ago, Cruise for a Cure was started in honor of a little girl named Sarah. Looking at her, you'd never know that she has cystic fibrosis - a life threatening genetic disease that affects the lungs. Sarah takes dozens of medications a day and bravely endures all sorts of medical treatments. It is thanks to the CF

Foundation that she gets the best medicine and has the best shot of beating this disease.

Cost is $35 for riders and $10 for passengers and includes everything - Dunkin' Donuts in the morning, poker run, raffle tickets, and lunch donated by the Outback Steakhouse of Tyngsboro. Raise or donate $50 and you will also receive a Cruise for a Cure t-shirt and be entered to win one of 2 grand prizes - 2 American Airlines tickets anywhere in the 48 contiguous states and a 5 day motorcycle rental courtesy of California.

The Moving Wall is coming

Wilmington to host Vietnam War Moving Wall, September 18-22

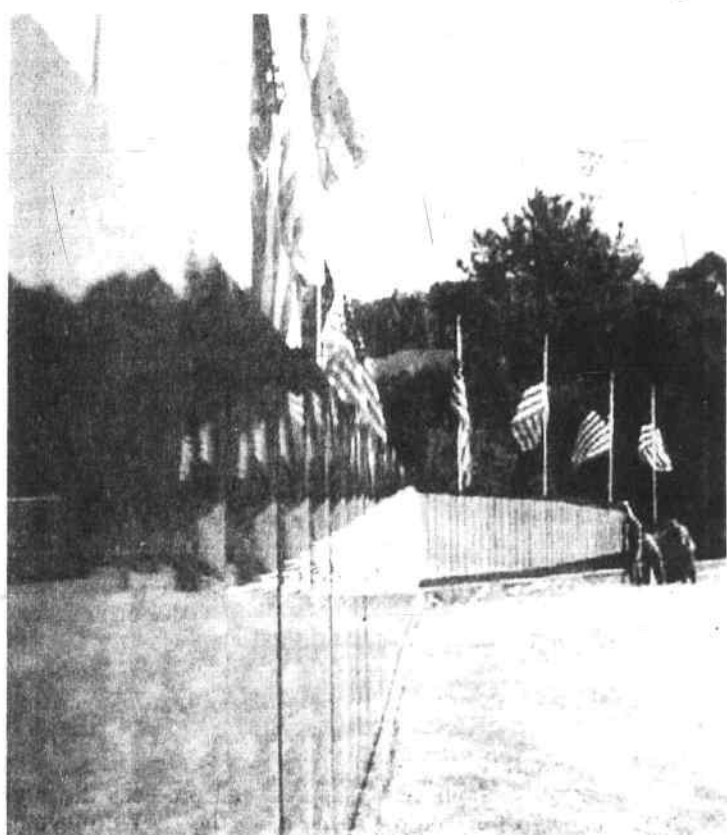

WILMINGTON - The Moving Wall Wilmington Committee would like to express its sincere gratitude for the many individuals and organizations that have made contributions to help bring The Moving Wall Vietnam War Memorial to Wilmington. Of specific note, we would like to thank the Wilmington 4th of July Committee and the Wilmington Rotary Club for their recent generosity. We also appreciate the support of many residents who have purchased the Commemorative Key Chains or Tee shirts at Lucci's, Elia's Country Store, Hancox Kitchens, Whistle Stop Market and other locations around town.

Tee Shirts and Key Chains are still available so we encourage one and all to visit any of the above named locations to purchase up. Keep in mind that the Committee made special arrangements to ensure that these T-shirts were made in America.

The Committee is very excited about having The Moving Wall here in Wilmington from September 18-22. Only through the continued support of Wilmington's organizations, businesses and residents will this important ever be as remarkable and memorable as it deserves to be. To learn more about The Moving Wall, visit www.themovingwallwilmington.com. Everyone's continued support is needed and appreciated.

Tewksbury launches stormwater awareness campaign

As part of its ongoing "Stormwater Matters" education effort, Tewksbury is conducting an ad campaign to raise public awareness about stormwater. The ads may be seen on cable television, the municipal website, and as posters and postcards.

Stormwater is the runoff water after it rains or snows. Stormwater picks up litter, sand, bacteria, and chemicals as it flows over the land and into storm drains, and it carries these pollutants to our streams, ponds, wetlands and coastal waters. Stormwater pollution can harm water quality, making waterways less usable for drinking, swimming, fishing, boating, and wildlife.

The new stormwater ad campaign focuses on lawn care, car care, picking up after pets, not littering, keeping storm drains clean, and low impact development techniques. Each ad gives practical and easy tips for how to prevent stormwater pollution. These colorful ads have catchy slogans such as: "over-feeding our lawns may green our rivers and ponds", "oil and water don't mix", "please scoop your poop", "what's going down your storm drain?", "storm drains are not for dumping", and "put a LID on stormwater pollution".

Tewksbury obtained the stormwater ads through a "Stormwater Matters" education program run by the SuAsCo Watershed Community Council, a non-profit alliance located in the Sudbury-Assabet-Concord River Basin.

"We hope the ads catch on and people follow these simple tips," says Nancy Bryant, Executive Director of the SuAsCo Watershed Community Council. "Everyday activities can make a real difference in keeping stormwater clean and improving the water quality of our rivers, lakes, and coastal waters. Preventing stormwater pollution is far less expensive than cleaning up waterways after pollution has occurred."

The ads (posters, index cards and book markers) can be seen at the Tewksbury Department of Public Works, Police Department, Town Hall, Town Hall Annex, Public Library, recreation building and School Administrative Building. Tewksbury's local cable channel will also be running the ads periodically.

Watch for the stormwater ads and help spread the word: Stormwater Matters!

Lisa Rooker of Wilmington is this year's honoree at Wilmington High School.

The Rensselaer Medal, the oldest prize of its kind in the United States, is awarded by more than 3,900 secondary schools throughout North America, Latin America, Europe, and Asia. This award is given to students who have distinguished themselves in mathematics and science. To be honored with the Rensselaer Medal, a student must be a member of the junior class and the high school's single most promising science and mathematics student.

Each medalist who is accepted and subsequently enrolls at Rensselaer receives a scholarship of $60,000 payable in four yearly awards of $15,000 each.

Annual Justin O'Neil Walk/Run

WILMINGTON - The family and friends of Justin invite you to participate in the annual Walk/Run to benefit the Justin Andrew O'Neil Memorial Scholarship Fund to take place at the Wilmington Town Common on Sunday, September 7.

A day of family fun is planned with a three-mile walk/run followed by food, music, moon walk, slush, popcorn, raffle table, etc.

This event helps to celebrate and honor Justin's life and will allow the O'Neil family to present this scholarship to Wilmington seniors graduating from high school for many years to come. Over the past few years, with the community's continued support, the family has been able to award several scholarships to deserving students in Justin's memory.

If you wish to participate in this fundraiser you may register the day of the event, starting at noon, with the walk/run beginning at 12:30 p.m. If you wish pledge, sheets are available at several locations in town including Town Hall.

Winchester Hospital's Community Health Institute Outpatient Lactation Center celebrates World Breastfeeding Week

WINCHESTER — Dozens of mothers and their children attended a recent celebration of World Breastfeeding Week hosted by Winchester Hospital's Community Health Institute Outpatient Lactation Center. World Breastfeeding Week is celebrated in 120 countries.

The Outpatient Lactation Center offers support and education for women to achieve their breastfeeding goals, regardless of where they delivered their babies. Guidance is provided in accordance with the World Health Organization and American Academy of Pediatrics, which advise that breast milk is the ideal infant nutrition. International Board Certified Lactation Consultants (IBCLC), who are also registered nurses, are available to assist breastfeeding mothers and babies (both inpatient and outpatient).

Breastfeeding mothers are invited to schedule an individual consultation with a lactation consultant. These professionals are available for general support, as well as questions regarding painful breastfeeding, a baby's slow weight gain and/or inadequate diaper output, and other issues.

The Outpatient Lactation Center's Lactation Boutique carries a variety of breastfeeding supplies. Products include breast pumps for rental and purchase, custom fit nursing bras, breastfeeding pillows and nursing covers. The boutique is open Tuesdays and Thursdays, 2:30 to 4:30 p.m., or by appointment Monday through Friday.

Former TMHS Hockey Player

Walsh scores big joining Lawrence University staff

By MIKE GIANNATTASIO
Sports Correspondent

Former Tewksbury Memorial High School hockey player and graduate Sean Walsh has been continuing his success in the sport he's been devoted to all of his life. But now he has taken the next step.

Walsh recently joined the Lawrence University Vikings in Appleton, Wisconsin as an assistant coach for the 2008-2009 season. The Vikings hired him following his first season of collegiate coaching at Adrian College in Adrian, Michigan last year.

While at Adrian College, Walsh assisted in all aspects of the American Collegiate Hockey Association men's hockey team in their inaugural campaign. His work on the penalty kill and his recruiting efforts helped guide the Adrian Bulldogs to a solid opening season.

When asked why he decided to take the Division 3 coaching job in Wisconsin after coaching in Michigan last year, Walsh offered a couple of different reasons.

"(First), I wanted to build a relationship with NCAA division three coaches and move my way up eventually," said Walsh, who after graduating from TMHS in 2002 went on to graduate from Southern New Hampshire University four years later. "With the NCAA being bigger and more well-known especially in the east coast, I thought it would be a good move for me. But at the same time I also decided to come to (Lawrence University) to work for a coach who is highly respected, and I'll get a lot of valuable learning experiences in all different kinds of the game."

The head coach of the Vikings, Mike Szkodzinski, said he is absolutely thrilled to have Walsh as an assistant coach next to him as he thinks he will do a great job recruiting players for this upcoming hockey season.

"Beyond the very energetic hard-working guy that Sean is, I think (our team) is real lucky to have a guy who wants to recruit for us and who wants to get involved in all aspects," said Szkodzinski. "I think Sean can do a great job for us at spreading the word about our team in even more areas than we've been able to recruit over the last few years."

Since taking the job at Lawrence University, Walsh said he has enjoyed traveling to many different parts of North America while trying to recruit the best hockey players for the Lawrence University program.

"I've been to places that I never thought I would go to," said Walsh, who did not play hockey at SNU but played professionally for the Class 'A' Danville Pounders of Illinois for one season after his senior year at SNU. "I've been to Saskatchewan, Canada, and I'm going to Sioux City, Iowa in a couple of weeks. I will also be going to British Columbia for recruiting soon after that, and I'll be coming to New England two different times this year as well.

"So I'll get a good feel of all of North American Hockey and I'll be able to compare and contrast different leagues. For me it's just a great experience as I get to meet different people and move up in the ladder."

Walsh added that he does not think he would be in the position he is now if it wasn't for his former high school hockey coach Bob Ware.

"One of the reasons I wanted to go into coaching is because of the good high school coach that I had in Bob Ware," said Walsh, who played for Ware at TMHS for three years before Ware left to be an assistant coach at UMass Lowell during his senior season. "I have learned a lot from Bob, and he is the main reason that I wanted to get into coaching. He's helped me a lot getting into it and throughout my coaching career so far. I'll still call him every couple of weeks, and he'll always give me advice on some detailed coaching things."

Ware is not surprised that Walsh has found a career in hockey, as Ware said he was one of the most committed hockey players he has ever coached.

"Sean was one of the most dedicated hockey players that I've ever been associated with," said Ware. "His passion for the game was unmatched, and he was just a kid who lived and died hockey. He wasn't one of our most talented kids, but his work ethic was what made him successful."

Walsh is hoping his work ethic will help him reach his goal of bringing the Vikings team a final four appearance this season.

"This season, our team wants to make it to the final four in the Northern Collegiate Hockey Association, which is the league we play in," said Walsh. "What happens is once a team gets in it, it's a one-game elimination and anything can happen. So our goal is to make it to the final four in the NCHA and see what happens from there."

Walsh, who worked at the Superskills Ice Hockey Rink in Tewksbury from 2004 to the summer of 2007, said he hopes he can reach his own personal aspiration of becoming a high ranked coach in the future.

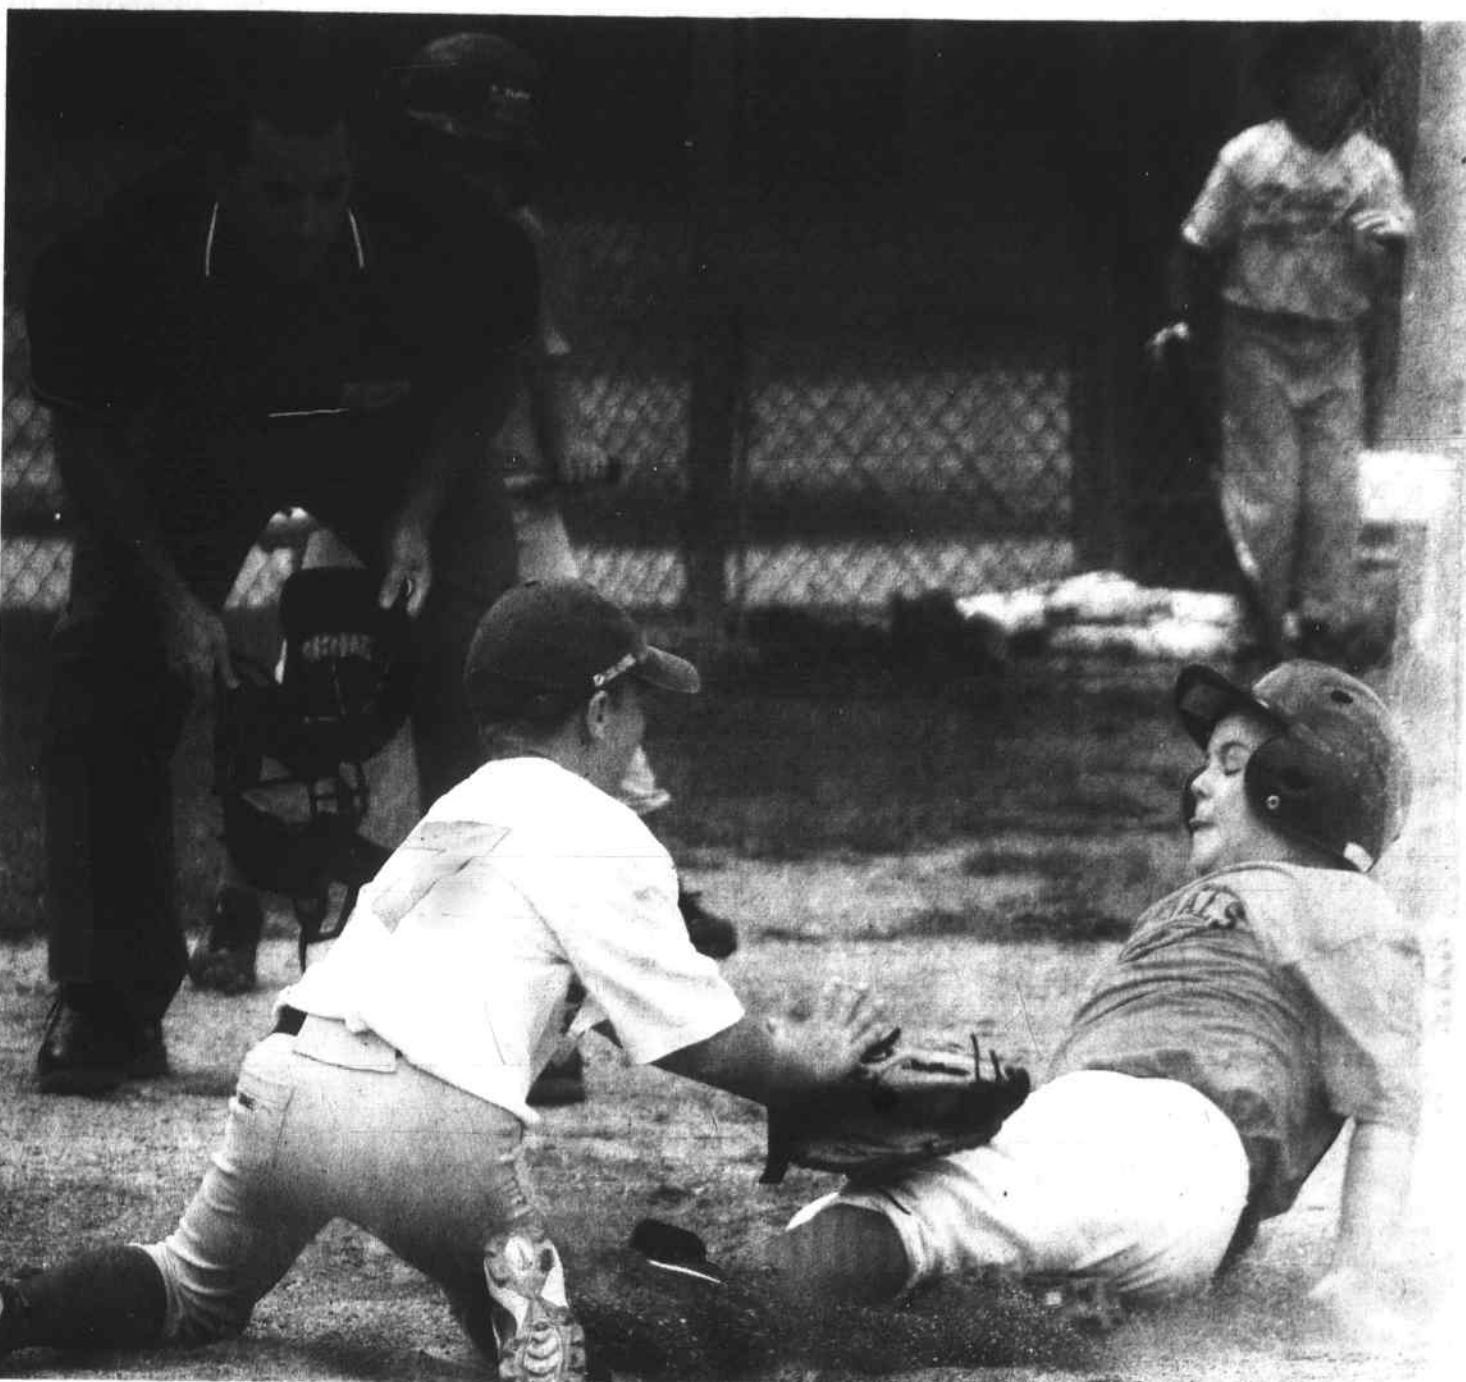

"My goal is to eventually be a NCAA Division 1 assistant coach or a NCAA Division 3 head coach somewhere," said Walsh.

For now Walsh will be trying to make a name for himself at Lawrence University, and Szkodzinski believes that having him as an assistant coach will definitely have a positive impact on the Vikings team for many more years to come.

"I think having an assistant like Sean who's eager to get out on the road and make contact with all the different leagues should only help us for not only this year's recruiting class but for years down the road by giving our university more exposure," said Szkodzinski, who will be coaching the Vikings team with Walsh in their first game of the season on October 28th versus St. Norbert College.

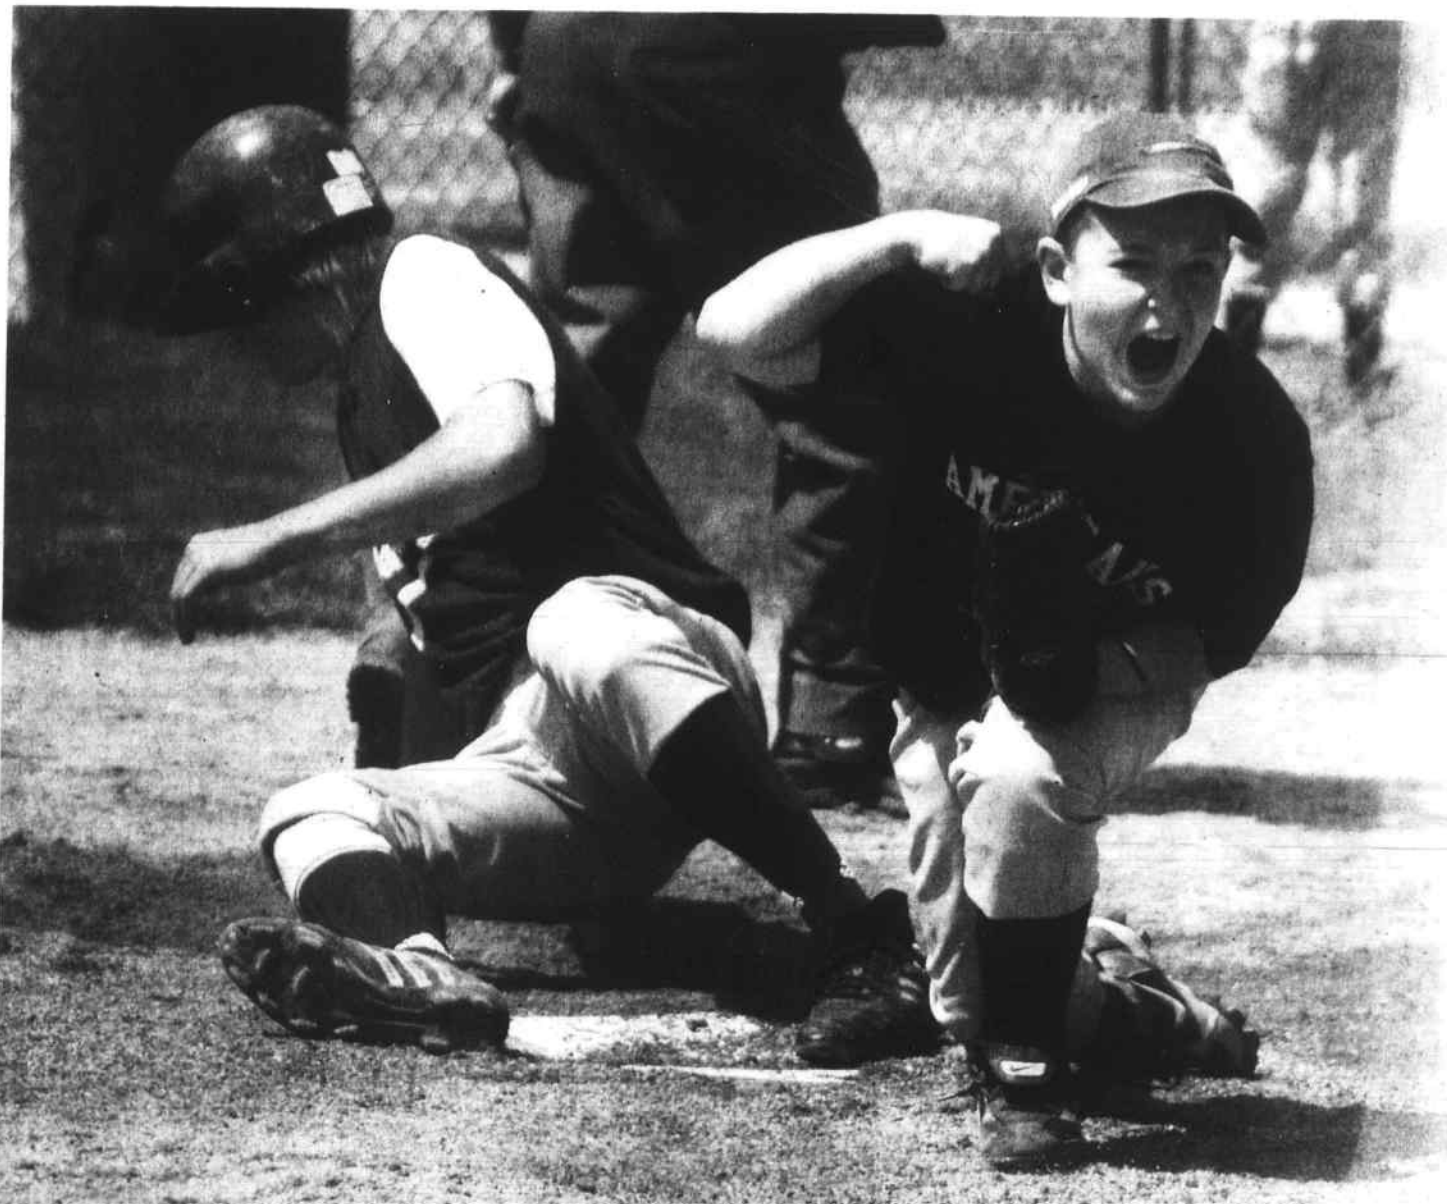

Ware agrees with Szkodzinski as he knows Walsh will continue to play an important role in making college hockey teams flourishing for a very long time.

"I just know that Sean has a drive to be successful, and he has a drive to stay with the sport of hockey," said Ware. "I can just hear it in his voice when I've spoken to him over the last year that he loves what he's doing."

These pages will start filling up next week

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

It's been a while since I've typed out a column, or a sports article for that matter, as the summer usually goes to smaller sections, combined sections with more help from my staff during the hot July and August days. This week marks the last one in August, thus high school sports, not to mention Major League Baseball playoff races, the start of another NHL season and of course the start of what should be a very exciting NFL season are all right around the corner.

With school starting this past week, I'd just like to make mention that starting next week the Town Crier will be back to its normal sports sections filled with plenty of high school sports, starting with previews on all of the local teams, plus stories on local athletes, several new coaches joining the sidelines.

In addition we will continue with our very popular columns, whether it's "Dropping the Gloves", "Cookie's Column", "Igo around Wilmington/Tewksbury", as well as the occasional "Sports Moment With ...", once again the Town Crier Sports Section will be filled with all kinds of different sports information for your liking.

We will once again be featuring the collegiate athletes from Wilmington and Tewksbury. So if you know of a local athlete who is putting on a uniform at a college or university, feel free to let us know by sending an email to: digo@mail.umd.edu, or "jamiepote@hotmail.com".

Besides myself and Dan Igo, the other talented writers from this staff including Rick Cooke, Mike Ippolito and Mike Giannattasio will all be returning and covering various sports stories.

I'd also like to take this moment to mention to all of the youth programs, youth coaches and youth parents, to submit their stories and pictures to the Town Crier. You may do that by dropping off articles and pictures to us at: 226 Lowell, Street, Wilmington, Ma.; or by sending me an email at: jamiepote@hotmail.com, or by sending me a fax at 978-658-2266.

Lastly, we always encourage feedback from our readers whether it's positive, negative or just some information which we were not aware of - so feel free to email any of our staffers here.

We also encourage "Letters to the Sports Editor", however all letters must be signed (if you would like your name withheld just say so, but it must be signed). If a "Letter to the Sports Editor" is unsigned, it gets thrown in the trash bucket, making it a complete waste of your time.

Besides all of that, I surely hope everyone had a great summer. So here's to a successful 2008-'09 school year. Let's hope it's a winning season but more importantly a safe one.

See you around the fields very soon.

Two weekends ago, the Tewksbury Under 12 girls softball team won the Lowell tournament and rightfully so the girls and their coaches showed off their trophies. (courtesy photo).

TYSL Clean-Up Day a success once again

This past Saturday TYSL held its third Annual Frasca Field Clean Up Day where some 60-plus volunteers showed up to install lights, paint gates, mow lawns, and fix fences.

The story of the day was the kind donation of time and energy of the Tewksbury High School Soccer Varsity and Junior Varsity Teams led by their team captains Mark and Ryan.

"They started rolling in around 8:00 am and didn't leave until well after 2:00 pm. You name it, they did it, from pouring concrete, to digging holes, cutting brush, and lining fields" according to TYSL Facilities Director, Mike Callahan, who organized the enormously successful community event.

Legendary Soccer Coach Steve Levine postponed a scrimmage and gave the team the day off in order to focus on helping TYSL prepare for their fall season. It was not long ago most of the members of the high school team played on these same fields where some 700 youngsters will take to the fields on Saturday, September 6th.

New to the facility is a kick board on the upper fields, a new gating system for the pedestrian bridge, and shelving for the shed.

A heart felt thanks from the TYSL BOD's goes to the soccer teams and all the volunteers who turned out to make the start of the season so positive. For more information please go to our web site at Tewksburyyouthsoccer.org

Tewksbury Youth Soccer is bringing in Legendary Coach and Author of "PRIDE + A Coach's Handbook", Barry Kipnes, to Tewksbury to speak on "Parental Interference" from 8:00 to 9:00 pm on Wednesday, September 3rd in Hall "A" of the Tewksbury Senior Center.

Tewksbury coaches and directors of all youth sports programs are invited to attend this free event.

Coach Kipnes was a coach at the high school level for over 34 years and has written three other books related to helping coaches improve as a coach, deal with difficult parents, run effective practices, and how to effectively raise funds and promote your sports program.

Dietsch makes academic list

UMass Lowell placed 29 student-athletes on the inaugural Division II Athletic Directors Association Academic Achievement winners' list, the ADA announced recently.

UMass Lowell was one of two Northeast-10 Conference, institutions to be honored (along with Bentley) as the D2ADA cited 67 colleges and 2,188 student-athletes.

Among the 29 student-athletes who were recently honored, include Tewksbury's Chris Dietsch, a sophomore member of the track-and-field team who is majoring in computer science.

To be eligible, student-athletes must have a cumulative grade point average over a 3.5, attended two years of college-level work, and been a member of an intercollegiate team during his/her last academic year.

The DII ADA is the first organization of its kind to provide educational and networking opportunities; enhancement of acceptable operating standards and ethics; and establishment of the overall prestige and understanding of the profession of Division II athletics directors.

Massachusetts Good Neighbor Energy Fund's 2007-08 campaign

Surpasses goal with $963,005 in donations

BOSTON - The Massachusetts Good Neighbor Energy Fund, a cooperative effort between the state's energy companies, their customers and The Salvation Army to help families in temporary financial crisis pay their energy bills, announces that its 2007-2008 "Give The Gift of Warmth" campaign surpassed its fundraising goal of $600,000 by raising $963,005. Most importantly, this year's donation total, the second largest in the Fund's history, provided energy assistance to more than 2,975 needy families in Massachusetts.

Stephen Bryant, President of Bay State Gas Company, credited people's exceptional spirit of giving for the campaign's success. "Even with the high costs of living, the generosity and goodwill of residents in the Commonwealth toward their neighbors in need has come through in a way that should make us all proud." Bryant also thanked the Fund's energy sponsors for their various matching and giving programs.

"In terms of money raised and people assisted, this will go down as one of the Fund's better campaigns in the twenty-three year history of the Fund," said Major William Bode of The Salvation Army, which administers the Fund. "It shows that our audience of potential donors understands that the need for energy assistance is a real and an urgent situation for thousands of Massachusetts residents each year."

The Fund is often the last resort for families who have not qualified for federal and state assistance programs. To qualify for assistance from the Fund, an applicant's gross household income must fall between a specified percent of the Federal Poverty Income Guidelines. This year's Fund disbursement was $275 per eligible household per heating season.

Since its establishment in 1985, the Massachusetts Good Neighbor Energy Fund has raised over $15.5 million and helped more than 72,000 families in need pay a month's energy expense. The Fund is currently closed but will reopen on December 1st for emergency cases. For more information, please visit www.magoodneighbor.org.

Energy customers in Massachusetts can "Give the Gift of Warmth" by using the Good Neighbor Energy Fund donation envelope found in their utility bills during the winter months or through an "add a dollar" program offered by some companies which allows customers to increase their monthly utility bill payment by one dollar or more. Or, customers can simply make a check payable to "The Good Neighbor Energy Fund" and send it to The Salvation Army, 147 Berkeley Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02116. To donate on line, please visit www.magoodneighbor.org.

Lawson Team to join season 2 of Dancing with the Realtors

The Lawson Team, Cathy and Gwen, of Realty Executives Northeast is excited to be participating in Season 2 of Dancing with the Realtors, a fundraising event for Habitat for Humanity. Dancing with the Realtors was created by Linda Covino and Season 1 took place in the spring of 2007, raising $21,000. The show is based off the ABC hit Dancing with the Stars.

In order to dance in the show, realtors and affiliates must commit to ten ballroom lessons at Studio 665 in Woburn, where they are currently training. This year, newcomers will be dancing the foxtrot and swing, while returning dancers will be learning the cha-cha and tango. The show, hosted by Sara Edwards of Backstage CN8, will take place at the Burlington Marriott on November 14, 2008. All participants will also compete in the statewide finals at the Eastern United States Dancesport Championship at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel on February 20, 2009.

Dancing with the Realtors, a statewide event raised $81,000 collectively in 2007. For more information about local shows, contact Linda Covino at Linda@lindacovino.com. Dancing with the Realtors' goal for 2008 is to raise $100,000.

Cathy and Gwen welcome you to cheer and support the Lawson team in their efforts to raise funds for this great cause. To attend Dancing with the Realtors Season 2, sponsor the event, or donate to Habitat for Humanity through the show, contact the Lawson Team at www.cathysells.com

Book Discussions

Owen Foot, Mighty Scientist:

Friday, September 12, 3:30 pm
More than anything Owen Foote wants to be a real scientist with a white lab coat. That's why he hopes to get into Mr. Wozniak's class, where science is king. The classroom is lined with aquariums and the students get to wear lab coats when they show the little kids around. Owen figures that the surest way to get himself and his best friend, Joseph, into Mr. Wozniak's class is for them to win first prize in the school science fair. But their "project" turns out to be uncooperative, and Owen finds that he and Joseph may not have the same goals. Will the boys' friendship help to keep them on track? Find out the answer when you read Stephanie Greene's Owen Foot, Mighty Scientist. Join children ages seven and older for book discussion of this book to be held on Friday, September 12 at 3:30 pm.

Diary of a Wimpy Kid:

A new opportunity for brain injury survivors

LEXINGTON - The recent ribbon cutting ceremony and open house for Douglas House represents the latest opportunity for survivors of acquired and traumatic brain injuries as they seek a path to an independent life with quality and dignity.

Douglas House is the newest of three homes operated by Supportive Living, Inc. (SLI). The 15 handicap-accessible studio apartments units will bring the total of SLI's residential housing to 38. Each unit is specifically designed to meet the varied needs of brain injury survivors.

Prior to the U. S. District Court decision, many survivors of brain injuries had few choices about where they could live. It has been estimated that approximately 8,000 people with brain injuries currently reside in nursing and rehabilitative facilities in Massachusetts.

Supportive Living Inc., a 501-c-3 non-profit organization was the creation in 1991 of Carrol Stephens and her late husband, Douglas, who were genuinely concerned about the lack of appropriate, accessible and affordable housing with 24/7 supportive services available to brain injury survivors.

SLI is at the forefront in ongoing discussions with the state and other health providers to determine the proper model for the newly mandated community style residences.

The SLI model has been proven to be a success as many of their residents achieve goals that would not have been possible in the past. SLI is now looking to the future and plans are underway for more homes throughout the north of Boston area.

Tewksbury Schools

Results of the Independent Evaluation Safe and Drug Free Schools Project

By Christine L. McGrath, PhD
Superintendent of Schools

The Tewksbury Public Schools recently conducted an independent evaluation of our efforts in the area of alcohol and drug prevention. These efforts focused on four objectives. These objectives were: reduce the threat of violence in our schools, reduce the incidence of drug/alcohol use by our students, increase the effectiveness of bully prevention and increase the effectiveness of protective factors. Protective factors are resources and sources of support that encourage healthy decision making among our student body.

The data was collected through a survey. This survey was administered to all personnel who are involved in school counseling, nursing services, health education, as well as members of our District Security Team and Student Assistance Team. The results from this survey are very promising.

The majority of the respondents reported a belief in the reduction in the use of drugs and alcohol as well as a reduction in the incidence of physically threatening behavior. The respondents recognized the efforts of the district to create a safe environment. This response is consistent with the findings of our recent focus groups. These groups were convened to gather data for our new five-year strategic plan.

The respondents reference the value of the School Crisis Handbook, the attitude of "zero tolerance" and the active work of both the District Security Team and the Student Assistance Team in creating a safe school culture. The data from many of the respondents does indicate that we need to increase our effort to inform all members of the Tewksbury Public School Community of our work in the area of drug alcohol prevention.

Copies of the report are available on our website www.tewksbury.k12.ma.us or through the office of the Superintendent located at 139 Pleasant Street 978-640-7800. Copies are also available at the Town Library.

Red Sox first round draft pick Casey Kelly joins Spinners for playoff run

LOWELL - The Lowell Spinners, Class-A affiliate of the World Series Champion Boston Red Sox, announced today that Red Sox No. 1 Draft Pick Casey Kelly is joining the Spinners in Staten Island in the midst of the team's nine-game road-trip.

Kelly, the Red Sox top selection in the 2008 First-Year Player Draft out of Sarasota (Fla.) High School, 30th overall, signed with the Red Sox July 17 and reported to the Gulf Coast Red Sox.

A two-way standout at Sarasota High School, Kelly hit .473 (44-for-93) with 13 doubles, 5 homers, 31 RBI and 11 steals as a senior in 2008 while being selected as the All-Area Player of the Year. The 6-foot-3, 195-pound righthander also pitched in 12 games, going 8-1 with 2 saves and a 1.16 ERA. He fanned 77 and walked just 12 over 66.2 innings pitched.

Since reporting to the GCL Red Sox, Kelly hit .173 with five doubles, a home run and nine RBI. The 18-year-old Kelly opted to sign with the Red Sox rather than follow through his commitment to the University of Tennessee where he was due to play both football and baseball.

Kelly is one of three first round picks on the Spinners roster, joining 2007 supplemental first-round draft pick Ryan Dent and 2008 supplemental first-round draft pick Bryan Price. With the addition to Kelly of the roster, the Red Sox top five selections in the 2008 draft will all be on the Spinners roster.

Currently, the Spinners magic number stands at five games to clinch the Stedler Division title and the first playoff appearance in franchise history. Tickets still remain for the Spinners final two home games, Sept. 1 and 2, and for the potential first playoff game by calling the Spinners Box Office at 978-459-1702 or at www.lowellspinners.com.

A look back at Wilmington of yesteryear...

The Mill in the Land of Nod

By LARZ F. NEILSON

WILMINGTON - A large portion of North Wilmington is historically referred to as the Land of Nod. The name, of course, comes from the Biblical story in Genesis of Cain being banished to the Land of Nod, east of Eden, for slaying his brother Abel.

The land of that name in North Wilmington is roughly described as being north of Salem Street and east of the railroad tracks.

The land was set aside in 1642 as compensation to Charlestown for land that was used to establish the town of Woburn. Charlestown was given 3,000 acres, which was beyond the domain of any established churches. The land was then given to ten prominent citizens.

It was in this land that a sawmill was built in 1695, where Martin's Brook crosses Salem Street, near the current location of Shea's Concrete. One early owner of the mill is said to have been Samuel Sewall, who was one of the judges at the Salem witch trials.

The mill is referred to in Asa Sheldon's book, "Wilmington Farmer." Sheldon bought the mill in 1808. He doesn't refer to a specific location of the mill, but it was undoubtedly the Nod Mill.

Sheldon wrote: "In 1807, I was hired by Major Aaron Pearson, and came to Wilmington, where I soon made the acquaintance of Mr. Jabez Gowing's family." Maj. Pearson lived on Ballardvale Street, about where Lockwood Road is today.

Sheldon continues, "Mr. Pearson owned a saw mill in company with two others, and much of my business was lumbering, a kind of work that suited me."

"When about 20 years of age, I bought the said saw mill in company with John Nelson."

A year later, Sheldon fell under a loaded wagon at the mill and his left leg was shattered. His leg was very nearly amputated, but Sheldon wouldn't allow it. "No man shall cut my leg off while I have my senses," he vowed. "If I lose my senses and it is cut off, and I can find out who did it, I will shoot him."

Dr. Kittridge sat with Sheldon in a vigil, applying a dressing every 15 minutes. The leg was not amputated, and Sheldon survived.

Sheldon, in the next chapter, wrote that he boarded at Joshua Harnden's tavern, for the advantage of being nearer the mill. He bought a woodlot on Andover Street.

Another reference to the mill is to be found in "Harnden Tavern Tales," written by Alice Dillaway. She was a descendant of the Brown family.

Dr. Silas Brown purchased the Harnden Tavern in 1818, and the Brown family owned it for 125 years. Then in 1827, Dr. Brown purchased the Nod Mill and his son, John Huse Brown took over operations. He married Charlotte Stimpson. In 1833, Dr. Brown bought a house for them near the mill, along with a parcel of land. There they had eight children, seven of whom lived to adulthood. Then in 1852, the Mill House burned. They were able to save most of their possessions, but John Brown was severely injured. Dr. Brown took them in at the Harnden Tavern.

Charlotte Stimson Brown, along with her mother and her children, left Wilmington and settled in Philadelphia. John Brown remained in the care of his father, the doctor.

Silas Brown Jr. operated the mill during the Civil War, manufacturing "flannel boards." They were used by the textile mills for wrapping flannel fabric, to be made into military uniforms for the troops of the Union Army.

After the Civil War, the mill went idle. In 1885, Silas Brown, Jr. wrote to a Mr. M. T.

Nob Mill circa 1900

Richardson about the mill.

"My mill is an up-and-down sawmill, one saw — a winter and spring mill. The stream is small and the pond very large. Time of sawing three or four months, seldom five months."

"The other three or four other sawmills in this town are played out — don't pay."

Silas Brown, Jr. and his sister Abigail lived in the Harnden Tavern, each in a separate area of the house, which had an ell on the back. Silas, who was quite deaf, was the organist at the Congregational Church, although he was a "Freethinker."

The mill burned in the 1890s in a great fire that swept from an area near the Harnden Tavern all the way to Lynnfield.

The up-and-down blade for the mill was saved, and is now in the collection at the town museum at the Harnden Tavern. There are also photographs of the mill.

In the 1930s, the dam at the mill site was rebuilt as a WPA (Works Progress Administration) project. For decades, the Wilmington Water Dept. would put the boards in the dam every year to flood the large bog north of Salem Street, to recharge the town wells.

MDA fundraiser

By CHARITY B. LEGVOLD

T E W K S B U R Y / W I L M I N G T O N - In recognizing the volunteer efforts of one local woman and also giving a nod to the charitable giving of the residents and businesses in Tewksbury and Wilmington, the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Association Telethon invited Tewksbury resident/local business owner Diane Porter to appear live on this year's annual MDA telethon to present a check resulting from a Tewksbury/Wilmington fundraiser earlier this year.

Porter was recently informed of this special honor by a letter, which read in part, "In recognition of your outstanding efforts on behalf of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, you are invited to appear during a local cutaway segment of the 2008 Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon broadcast live on WCVB-TV Channel 5."

Porter is scheduled to appear on-camera live, on Labor Day morning, Monday, September 1, at approximately 10:40 a.m. (This is an approximate time because this is a live television broadcast.) She will present a check for the money that was raised at the Tewksbury/Wilmington LOCK UP, an event held earlier this year at Mavericks Restaurant in Tewksbury.

Porter, who is owner of Excel Home Care of Tewksbury, said, "That's a wonderful surprise! It's truly an honor to be presenting the check [for the Tewksbury/Wilmington LOCK UP]."

In addition to her role as founder and owner of Excel Home Care, Porter is a past President of the Greater Lowell Exchange Club and also the founder of Youth Enhancement Services (a.k.a. YES) a Massachusetts nonprofit corporation that focuses on giving kids a chance to turn their lives around.

From their website, "YES is a non-profit organization dedicated to improving the lives of children with emotional, developmental or behavioral challenges (like ADHD, Pervasive Developmental Disorder, Post Traumatic Stress and other disorders). We do this through consultation, training, support and specialized programs. It is our goal to help each child reach his or her full potential in school, make full use of all available community resources, and remain safe within a functioning and supportive family." YES has several upcoming fundraising events including an Irish-themed evening at the Tewksbury Country Club and ticket sales for a Boston Pops show in December, but for now

Porter's focus is on the MDA fundraising. "There was a lot of effort by all the people involved that made this a successful event," said Porter adding, "We did good!"

Local efforts underway to Control the Spread of West Nile Virus

By MIA CARTER

In recent years, West Nile Virus has been a concern among Boston area cities and towns, spurring the implementation of WNV testing operations for mosquitoes and birds, combined with more frequent mosquito spraying operations. Unfortunately, with the near-daily rainstorms, mosquito populations have been high and authorities have had to ramp up efforts in terms of mosquito control and other efforts to control the spread of the virus.

"We've had quite a bit of rain and the water makes for prime mosquito breeding areas," explained David Henley, Superintendent of the Eastern Middlesex Mosquito Control Project. He added, "Over the next six weeks, I would recommend that people monitor all water-holding containers on their property - this is the time when people should be checking those things because this is going to be a time characterized by a lot of activity."

West Nile Virus is a blood-borne illness, meaning it spreads when an uninfected person's bloodstream is contaminated as the result of direct contact with infected blood. A common mode of infection involves a bite from a mosquito, after the mosquito has bitten a West Nile Virus carrier.

According to Henley, there are two types of mosquitoes that are most commonly involved in the transmission of West Nile Virus: mammal-biting mosquitoes and culex mosquitoes. Mammal-biting mosquitoes tend to be more aggressive, though there's less incidence of West Nile Virus found in this type of mosquito. On the other hand, culex mosquitoes are less aggressive and tend to primarily target birds, with the occasional mammal included on the menu.

"Culex mosquitoes are less aggressive and they're not as apt to go after a moving target, as [in the case of] the mammal-biting varieties. So someone who's running and active during an outdoor sporting event isn't going to really be a prime target. But the people who are sitting and watching the sporting event - particularly around dusk - are going to be at risk and it's these people who should absolutely be wearing repellent. Sitting and relaxing on the deck is another instance where humans will be at risk for bites from Culex mosquitoes," Henley explained.

The spread of West Nile Virus is monitored in three ways: by testing mosquito populations; by testing dead birds (blue jays and crows, specifically); and any human cases of West Nile Virus are also logged.

Mosquito Testing and the West Nile Virus

Mosquito control efforts begin in early spring and authorities credit this for slowing the spread of the virus, which was first discovered in the West Nile region of Uganda in 1937. The West Nile Virus was first found in North America in the summer of 1999.

Mosquitoes are the main mode of transmission for the blood-borne West Nile Virus. Therefore, authorities from the Eastern Middlesex Mosquito Control Project and other similar agencies throughout the state begin each season by using pesticide tablets to treat the water of culverts, ponds and other areas of stagnant water that tend to serve as mosquito nurseries.

Sporadically throughout the summer, mosquito control efforts continue both by treating the water directly, and through the utilization of aerosol spraying operations. Throughout the late spring and early summer, The Eastern Middlesex Mosquito Control Project conducts mosquito spraying operations using truck-mounted sprayers, which target problematic neighborhoods. Using data from past years and by analyzing the geography of a community, the Eastern Middlesex Mosquito Control Project determines which areas are most likely to be at risk of having high mosquito populations, such as those neighborhoods that are located near marshes or areas of wetlands. The spraying operation is then scheduled, announced publicly and in the local newspapers in the days prior to the spraying, which is performed at dusk.

The Eastern Middlesex Mosquito Control project also performs regular mosquito collection operations using two types of traps, according to Henley.

One type of trap is described as a light trap, which attracts mosquitoes using a light and a bit of dry ice, which gives off carbon dioxide in the same way that humans do during breathing, thereby attracting mosquitoes. The light traps are equipped with a fan that gently sucks the mosquitoes down into a collection net.

The other type of trap is described as a "Grabit" trap, which consists of a pan of water and a fan and plastic box situated above. Since culex mosquitoes in particular are attracted to water with a high organic content, workers with the Eastern Middlesex Mosquito Control Project will soak oak leaves in a water container for several days. The water is then poured into the pan affixed to the trap, simulating the type of organic-rich stagnant water that attracts the mosquitoes. Culex mosquitoes are then attracted to the water to lay their eggs and when they approach, the fan directs the mosquitoes into the enclosed portion of the trap.

The trapped mosquitoes are then sent to the Massachusetts Department of Public Health's laboratories for testing for the West Nile Virus.

So far this season, mosquitoes have tested positive for the West Nile Virus in numerous communities in Massachusetts. The first positive mosquito was collected in Worcester on June 27, 2008.

According to the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, the WNV-positive mosquitoes have been located in the following communities:

- Reading: Mosquitoes collected on July 30 have tested positive for the West Nile Virus.

- Revere: Mosquitoes collected on August 6 have tested positive for the West Nile Virus.

- Medford: Mosquitoes collected on August 12 have tested positive for the West Nile Virus.

Health officials say that when a mosquito tests positive for mosquitoes, this is significant in that the virus can then be transmitted to a human or animal when a mosquito bite occurs. So to some degree, the locations where West Nile Virus-positive mosquitoes have been discovered are at greater risk when it comes to WNV.

Bird Testing and the West Nile Virus

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health also oversees a bird testing program.

It's up to members of the community to turn in dead birds for West Nile Virus testing. If the sample is reasonably fresh, the bird will

Movie Reviews

"HAMLET 2"

by Paul Feely

"HAMLET 2" was the hit of the Sundance Film Festival. It is an off-the-wall, irreverent comedy that is completely ridiculous. Luckily the actors are all completely committed to the movie. And instead of its plot being a much used cliché, it is actually a demented, twisted funny comedy.

"HAMLET 2"
GRADE: **

For a comedy as ridiculous as 'Hamlet 2' to be a success even the name makes no sense, considering the deaths of the characters in the original story 'Hamlet', every actor involved needs to be fully committed to the project - even if doing so makes them look like they should be committed themselves - to an institution.

Thankfully, everyone involved with this off-the-wall comedy believes in the material, and is happy to be a part of it.

Hamlet 2, the hit of the 2008 Sundance Film Festival, is an irreverent comedy centers on one teacher's overzealous quest to mount a high school musical. Steve Coogan plays Dana Marsch, a failed actor-turned-high-school drama teacher. Shortchanged in the talent department, Dana still harbors ambitions and passions. At work, that is; his personal life, with his dissatisfied wife Brie (Catherine Keener of 'The 40-Year-Old Virgin') and their boarder Gary (David Arquette of the 'Scream' movies), leaves much to be desired.

At Tucson, AZ's West Mesa High School, Dana sees himself as an inspirational teacher. But his adaptations of popular films, as performed by his top students Rand and Epiphany, are not resonating. When his latest, production, 'Erin Brockovich', is dismissed by the 9th grade drama critic and his department is targeted for closure, Dana must reach deep into himself for creativity.

After much perspiration, he conceives a sequel to Shakespeare's Hamlet, a musical-theater extravaganza that will disdain both political correctness and dramatic credibility.

With rehearsals underway, objections from school officials and the community are soon raised, but Dana will not be denied his freedom of artistic expression. Dana gets unexpected support from ACLU attorney Cricket Feldstein (Amy Poehler of Saturday Night Live) and his favorite actress, Elisabeth Shue (Academy Award nominee Elisabeth Shue as herself).

Word of the play gets out and results in an uproar, of course, as well it might - one of the big production numbers is Rock Me Sexy Jesus, which includes Jesus (with the "sexy swimmer bod") moon-walking on water.

At times, 'Hamlet 2' is as clichéd as the "inspirational teacher" movies it is trying to skewer, but the difference is the telling of the story is so demented, so twisted, so funny, that you overlook the fact that you may have seen this story before, especially if you've had the pleasure of viewing 'Waiting for Guffman'.

"TROPIC THUNDER"
GRADE: ***

Who would have guessed that the funniest comedy to come out of Hollywood this summer would be a film that pokes fun at Tinseltown itself.

'Tropic Thunder' is the story of four pampered movie stars (Ben Stiller, Jack Black, Robert Downey Jr., and Brandon T. Jackson) who are dumped in the Southeast Asian jungle to lend realism to the Vietnam War movie they're making, but the experiment goes very wrong when their director (Steve Coogan) steps on a land mine and the stars are on their own to face a ruthless gang of heroin traffickers.

Believe it or not, it's a comedy - directed by Stiller and written by him, Justin Theroux and Etan Cohen - and for all its raunch and profanity, it's an often-hilarious send-up of Hollywood pretensions, from the fake-trailer opening to the Oscar-ceremony ending. The big-name cast includes Nick Nolte, Matthew McConaughey, and several star cameos, including a great one by Tom Cruise.

Coarse, crude, merciless and often very funny, 'Tropic Thunder' spatters the screen with so many outrageous jokes and so much merciless satire that it will tire you out. There's hardly a part of Hollywood that isn't skewered, from moguls to dumb high-concept films to shameless product placement.

Stiller plays a dim action movie icon whose one bid for Oscar glory, "Simple Jack," was a laughable attempt to portray a mental disability. Robert Downey Jr. is a five-time

Oscar-winning Australian Method actor so determined to play a black soldier that he has undergone pigment therapy and refuses to break character even in life-and-death situations. Jack Black is a gross-out comedy star with a massive drug addiction. Nick Nolte is the grizzled Vietnam vet whose story has inspired the movie. And Tom Cruise, in a bald wig and fat suit, is the obscene and vicious producer, and his performance alone is worth the price of admission.

There are seven differences in the second picture. Can you spot them?

ANSWERS: HAT, NOSE, SHOES, ARM, PURSE, NOTE, GLASSES.

"PINEAPPLE EXPRESS"
GRADE: ***

Judd Apatow teams up with moody director David Gordon Green to create a new genre, stoner action comedy, as well as what may well be the funniest movie of the year in 'Pineapple Express'. It's the best drug comedy since Cheech and Chong's Up in Smoke (1978), and manages to be laid-back and goofy enough for stoners, but also a crazy and frenetic enough for everyone else.

Seth Rogen (who also co-wrote the screenplay) stars as Dale Denton, a process server who uses various disguises to serve his subpoenas and dates a hot, blond high school girl. He spends all day in his car and smokes a lot of pot.

Running dry, he visits his dealer, Saul (James Franco), in stringy hair and pajama pants. Saul is a smart, good-natured soul who seems to like Dale, while giving other customers the brush-off. Dale has learned never to be friends with drug dealers, and so he keeps his distance. But when Dale attempts to serve one of his clients, witnesses a murder and leaves a special joint ("Pineapple Express") at the scene, both he and Saul find themselves in a gang war between dirty cops and Asian gangsters.

The villains are more or less interchangeable, despite attempts to give them funny things to do or say (one, a large black man, shows a sensitive side, while another likes to go home for dinner with his wife). But as long as Dale and Saul are onscreen together, the movie soars. Franco and Rogen appear to enjoy a real friendship; it's a terrific "male bonding" picture. As for the drugs, Pineapple Express unapologetically celebrates pot-smoking but also contains the occasional disclaimer.

Regional recycling in Burlington and Tewksbury

"Public Works Supt. John Sanchez told the Board of Selectmen recently he does not expect serious abuse which could result from the town's participation in a new regional recycling initiative," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The program also includes Billerica, Chelmsford, Tewksbury and Tyngsborough.

"It allows residents to get curbside pick-up for white goods (largely refrigerators), appliances, televisions, and computer monitors without having to wait for a special collection event. Residents just need to make one phone call to schedule a pick-up.

"I know, you're concerned about TVs showing up at the same house, or, for example, three consecutive weeks of washing machines," said Town Administrator Robert Mercier, in response to a concern from Selectman Walter Zenkin. "If we notice something like that, we'll know something is going on."

"We will watch our community for abuse," said Sanchez. "We have a vendor who is familiar with the residents, it is a very competitive contract, and we are excited about it...."

"Also, the selectmen welcomed a new firefighter to the force, Paul Kadlak...."

The Colonel in Wilmington

"When Colonel Brewster 'Bruce' Butters graduated from Wilmington High School in 1977, he aimed for the skies and it wouldn't be long before he found himself flying," notes the "Wilmington Town Crier."

"Upon graduating, Butters enrolled at the University of New Hampshire, joined the ROTC, earned a four year scholarship, and graduated in 1981 with a Bachelor's of Science degree in Physics. He later earned his Master's degree in Aviation Science from Emory Riddle Aeronautical University in Florida.

"Butters recently retired from his 27 years of distinguished service with the Air Force. His career has been marked by several milestones including numerous merit awards and achievement medals. In 2005, Butters was recognized for having officially logged 4,001 hours in the F-16, including 131 combat hours. At the time, Butters became only the seventh pilot ever to accumulate more than 4,000 hours in an F-16 fighter jet.

"Ever since I was in my teens, I've always been fascinated with the opportunity to fly," said Butters. "The hardest part about retiring is leaving the people that have become like a family over the years."

"Butters' own family shares his pride in all of his accomplishments.

"Bruce has been a true testament to the power of following your dreams," said younger brother Bob Butters.

"At six years old, on his first day of school, he insisted on wearing our father's Air Force jacket and when a plane flew overhead he would tell our mother, 'I'm gonna do that....'

"The Butters family name is among, if not the, oldest in the town of Wilmington. William Butters of Scotland came to the New World sometime between 1630 and 1692. William's son, William, Jr., was elected one of Wilmington's first Selectmen in 1731. Bruce is a tenth generation descendant of William Butters.

"A Butters family member has served this country proudly in almost every military conflict throughout history, starting with King Philip's War in 1676. Descendants also received the call from Paul Revere on April 18, 1775, and marched 15 miles to Concord for the Battles of Lexington and Concord the following day, and the Battle of Bunker Hill shortly thereafter. In addition to the Revolutionary War, descendants also served in the War of 1812, the Civil War, World War I and World War II...."

Badges in Reading

"The Reading Fire Department welcomed three new members during a badge-pinning event during a meeting of the Board of Selectmen at Reading Town Hall," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Reading Fire Chief Greg Burns was present to honor two new firefighters, David Ferreira and Christopher Germain, as well as a firefighter who has completed training to become a certified paramedic, Scott Dole.

"The Advanced Life Support (A.L.S.) Level is the highest level of pre-hospital emergency medical care available to sick and injured patients," said Chief Burns.

"This enhanced service in many ways brings the hospital emergency room directly to the patient.

"The A.L.S. level of care provides for a wide variety of medications and sophisticated treatment techniques. Patients who are experiencing a medical emergency that is an immediate threat to their lives require Advanced Life Support intervention for proper treatment...."

"In addition to the firefighters, dad John Ferreira, Frank Germain, Ginny Germain, Katie Ferreira, and Dave Ferreira's fiancée, Elizabeth were present at the meeting.

"Scott Dole's dad, Philip

G. Dole, served on the Reading Fire Department from 1971 to 1999 and was also present at the ceremony."

Annual Walk of Hope for ALS September 6

Scores of walkers are gearing up for the upcoming 7th annual Walk of Hope for ALS, a 3.5-mile walk around Lake Quannapowitt in Wakefield. The walk, which will benefit The Angel Fund, will be held on Saturday, September 6th 2008, beginning with registration at 9 a.m. followed by the start of the walk at 11 a.m.

The Angel Fund is an independent, nonprofit organization dedicated to supporting Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS) research at the Cecil B. Day Neuromuscular Research Center. ALS, more commonly known as Lou Gehrig's Disease, is a progressive, always fatal neuromuscular disease. ALS leads to muscle weakness and as it progresses, results in total paralysis and the inability to speak and swallow while the mind and senses remain intact.

Walkers of all abilities are encouraged to participate as individuals or as a team. We encourage walkers to collect pledges. Teams that raise $1000 or more are eligible to be entered as a team into a prize drawing. Each of the first 500 walkers to register will receive a t-shirt.

To register as a walker or to register a team, please call The Angel Fund at 781-245-7070, or log-on to either the organization's website at www.theangelfund.org to download a brochure and a team captain's manual.

Donations to the Angel Fund can also be made online, or can be sent to The Angel Fund, 649 Main Street, Wakefield, MA 01880. All donations should be made payable to The Angel Fund.

The Angel Fund conducts other fund raising events throughout the year which, along with individual and corporate donations, have been beneficial in helping make significant strides in ALS research. For a list of upcoming events, visit The Angel Fund website.

"THE MUMMY: TOMB OF THE DRAGON EMPEROR"

GRADE: **

The only actor who looks good "The Mummy: Tomb of the Dragon Emperor" is Rachel Weisz, co-star of the first two installments. She decided not to return for the third time around, and it was a wise move.

"Mummy" is little more than a bunch of special effects occasionally interrupted by something that resembles a story: Brendan Fraser, Maria Bello (replacing Weisz) and their adult son are trying to prevent a long-dead warlord (Jet Li) from reanimating and taking over the world along with his warrior army.

The trouble with most effects-heavy films (with the exception of Peter Jackson's "The Lord of the Rings" trilogy) is that they fail to establish rooting interest in the people before the creatures begin destroying each other. "Mummy" climaxes with two armies of brownish special-effect monsters going at it, and you won't care who survives.

"Mummy" keeps tossing interesting ideas into the mix - the undead warriors, yeti, Shangri-La - and then goes no further with them.

Everyone flounders in this incompetently directed outing, at no one comes off as bad as Bello, who has put forth many strong performances in her career.

*MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA QUESTION: When was golf an Olympic sport?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

*The University of New Hampshire women's lacrosse team was named one of 50 programs in Division I to earn Academic Squad honors from the Intercollegiate Women's Lacrosse Coaches Association, the IWLCA announced Monday. MICHAELA HARDY (READING) a junior on the 2008 Wildcat squad, was among the 159 student-athletes named to the IWLCA Academic Honor Roll.

Hardy, one of five IWLCA/U.S. Lacrosse All-America selections on the Academic Honor Roll, was honored earlier this year as the 2008 America East Women's Lacrosse Scholar-Athlete in recognition of her excellence both on the field and in the classroom.

Hardy, a psychology major who started all 19 games, ranked 30th in the nation in goals per game (2.74), 54th in points (59) and 58th in caused turnover per game (1.37). She led America East in both goals per game (3.67) and caused turnovers per game (1.50); in addition, she was sixth in points per game (3.83). Hardy was the team leader in goals (52), points (59) and caused turnovers (26); the 52 goals is eighth on UNH's list of single-season superlatives. She also tied for fourth in both assists (seven) and ground balls (24).

As a junior midfielder for the Wildcats in the 2008 season, Hardy earned IWLCA/U.S. Lacrosse All-America Third Team accolades. Her other honors included women's lacrosse.com All-America Second Team, IWLCA/U.S. Lacrosse Northeast Region First Team, America East All-Conference First Team, America East All-Academic Team, America East Commissioner's Honor Roll and America East Defender of the Week (twice).

Teams with a collective grade-point-average of 3.0 or higher earned the distinction of Academic Squad. UNH was one of five America East conference schools to receive the honor. The honored student-athletes must have achieved at least junior year status and compiled a minimum GPA of 3.20.

New Hampshire advanced to the 2008 NCAA tournament and finished with 13 wins (second-highest win total in the program's 32-year history). The Wildcats peaked at No. 13 in the national rankings, the highest since 1992.

*Need some help with this week's question? It was an Olympic sport on only two occasions.

*At this year's Olympic games, history was made when US athlete RONDA ROUSEY, 21, became the first American woman to win a medal in judo, a sport that, on the women's side, only recently became, in 1992 at the Barcelona games, an official Olympic event.

Rousey was born in Los Angeles, California, but moved to WAKEFIELD four years ago to train with Jimmy Pedro at his Judo Center.

Going into Beijing, Rousey was considered one of the top American women and the female judoka (judo player) with the best chance to medal. She didn't disappoint by taking home the bronze in the middleweight (70kg/154lbs) class after defeating Annett Boehm of Germany.

Her victory came after earlier losing to Edith Bosch of the Netherlands in the third round. Rousey was still in medal contention, though, because in judo, two bronze medals are awarded in each weight class.

THE 7TH ANNUAL WALK OF HOPE FOR ALS, a 3.5-mile walk around Lake Quannapowitt in WAKEFIELD to benefit The Angel Fund, will be held on Saturday, September 6th 2008. The event will be held rain or shine and begins with registration at 9 a.m. followed by the start of the walk at 11 a.m.

West Nile

be accepted by the community's Health Department and submitted to the Massachusetts Department of Public Health oversees West Nile Virus.

This season, the first birds to test positive for the West Nile Virus were discovered in Newton and Framingham. Both birds tested positive on July 22, 2008, according to state health officials.

Locally, Burlington, Winchester, Woburn, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Lynnfield, North Reading, Tewksbury and Wilmington have all submitted dead birds to the Department of Public Health for testing. Of those communities, a bird tested positive for the West Nile Virus in Reading.

Other West Nile Virus-positive birds have been located in Saugus, Haverhill, Boston, Weston, Newton, Dedham, Winthrop, Dracut, Framingham, Sudbury, Plymouth and Natick, among others. In addition, it should be noted that very few birds have even been submitted for testing in the central and western portion of the state.

If a resident locates a dead bird, one of the first questions that may come to mind is whether that bird is eligible for testing. The Massachusetts Department of Public Health has set forth the following standards for bird testing:

- The bird must be a crow, robin or blue jay. Other birds can contract the virus, but data suggests that these two species are more likely to die from the virus, making these birds ideal for testing purposes.

- The bird must be "fresh" and free of visible trauma. Birds that have been dead for more than 24 hours are not eligible for testing. A recently-deceased bird's eyes will not be sunken in, nor will there be any maggots present on the carcass. There should be minimal, if any, odor present.

Dead birds are not accepted from all communities. After several dead birds from a particular city or town have tested positive for West Nile Virus, additional specimens are no longer required since it's successfully been established that West Nile Virus is present in the community.

For additional information concerning the West Nile Virus testing in birds and to report a dead bird, contact your local Health Department or Board of Health office, or call the Massachusetts Department of Public Health at 866-MASS-WNV.

For additional information concerning the West Nile Virus, contact the Massachusetts Department of Public Health Information Line at 866-627-7968 or visit the DPH's website at www.mass.gov/dph

Girgenti joins N.R.S.B

New faculty member at North Reading School of Ballet

The North Reading School of Ballet is excited to welcome Alicia Girgenti to our outstanding staff of dedicated teachers. During her early training she represented the state of Massachusetts in several national dance competitions and placed first in the American International Talent competition, holding the title for overall dance achievement. She attended Walnut Hill School of the Arts in Natick, MA, as well as several Boston Ballet summer dance programs.

Alicia was a principle dancer with the Albany Berkshire Ballet and over the years has been on the staff of several dance schools where she taught ballet, pointe, jazz, hip-hop, and lyrical. She also served as assistant artistic director for the Berkshire Dance Theater. Alicia is currently a member of Rainbow Tribe Dance Company, a contemporary jazz company based in Boston.

DANCERS FROM THE NORTH READING SCHOOL OF BALLET ACADEMY had the invaluable opportunity to travel to NYC in April and take a master class with Tyrick Jones from the Broadway musical Hairspray. Mr. Jones, who has performed different dance roles in Hairspray, taught the girls combinations from his various roles. While in the "big apple" the girls took other dance classes in ballet, tap and jazz and saw a memorable performance of Disney's Broadway Musical "The Little Mermaid".

Flash fashion: Go from drab to fab in minutes

Do you greet the day with "I have nothing to wear," yet your closet is overflowing and drawers are bulging? It's time for fashion rehab, the latest style trend. Change it up, change it out, cut it up, and put it back together again to create your own runway style with the clothing you already own. As millions of savvy fashionistas have already found, you'll save money and natural resources when you restyle the clothes you have.

What about those blah and boring jeans and T's? Add paint, embroidery and other embellishments to create a fresh new look that goes from ho-hum to hip. If you're not sure where to start, page through catalogs or your favorite fashion Web sites. Visit a high-end clothing boutique with the knowledge that you can recreate their looks for a fraction of the price. Then, make a quick stop in your local craft store or discount store to pick up the paints and other items you'll need for the project.

If you're a little overwhelmed and not sure where to start, consider spraying on the style. Spray paint, a favorite of home decorators for the speedy, easy way it transforms furniture and other decorative items, can transform your wardrobe, too. From take-it-to-the-street everyday fashion to after-hours evening wear, spray paints punch it up, creating custom designs with the push of a button. Spray on freehand, or pair with stencils and masks to create stylized looks. Change up accessories, too, and paint shoes, purses, belts and headbands.

Get the Look: To create the look shown here, determine the colors and design you'd like. From everyday denim to a one-of-a-kind evening gown, consider the fashion-forward paint palette available from Krylon. Krylon® Indoor/Outdoor Paints are available in 75 on-trend shades, from Totally Tangerine to Raspberry and Pistachio. Krylon Brushed Metallic spray paint, sold in five, shimmering shades, adds a subtle, glittery sparkle to wearables. The paints will retain their colors and stay soft, wash after wash. And, the fast-drying paint is ready to go in 10 minutes, so you won't be late for that important date.

Always pre-wash your clothing or fabric, and paint in a well ventilated area. Cover your work surface to protect it from overspray and consider wearing rubber gloves, too. Choose a pre-made stencil or mask, or make your own with clear acetate or paper. To hold the stencil or mask in place while you spray, use Krylon® Easy-Tack® Repositionable Adhesive. Easy-Tack will temporarily hold your stencil or mask in place, which can then be repositioned as you shift your design. Mix and match your design elements and colors to create a layered look, making sure each color is dry to the touch before you add another. Once you're done, let dry for 10 minutes and you're ready to go!

School Notes

by Phyllis Nissen

Revving up for next year

Well spoken (Woburn)

"School administrators outlined plans to tap outside resources, expand both space availability and teacher training opportunities, and utilize students' foreign language expertise in order to address a number of deficiencies found with the district's English Language Learner's (ELL) program," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"During a recent School Committee meeting, Asst. Supt. Mark Donovan unveiled a draft corrective action pro-positional response to the Dept. of Education's (DOE) coordinated review report issued early last January.

"A DOE team, which visited Woburn in 2006 to study the district's compliance with state and federal requirements in several areas, concluded that the city was not providing adequate materials, resources, and support to pupils enrolled in ELL offerings.

"ELL provides English immersion courses for non-native speakers. The goal of the program is for students to gain a sufficient grasp of the language, so they can be integrated into the general education program.

"In the intervening year-and-a-half [between the site visit and the issuance of the findings], many of the items in the report we had already corrected," explained Donovan.

"According to the Asst. Supt., one of the most common criticisms was that the district was failing to provide adequate counseling, academic, and extra-curricular support resources to the city's ELL population.

"The DOE team also contended that mandatory ELL policies and procedures hadn't been instituted by offering training opportunities to teachers and support staff.

"What we were able to do is develop a list of counselors who are available," said Donovan, referring to the deficiency in providing academic, emotional, and other related services...."

All that counts (Winchester)

"The School Committee approved a plan for students to study advanced level mathematics courses in order to be more competitive when applying to top colleges," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"High school math director Tom Haver presented a draft proposal to offer 'A' students the opportunity to study Advanced Placement (AP) calculus BC in their junior year, after meeting stringent requirements.

"Haver said accelerated programs of this type are offered at elite private schools' and that it was important for Winchester to have such a program in place. About five to ten students would be expected to qualify, depending on the year, Haver said.

"In order to qualify for the accelerated program, students would be required to complete algebra II assignments between eighth and ninth grades with an A by the September of their high school freshman year. They would take honors geometry the first and second quarters, with an A grade in order to switch to honors algebra midway through their freshman year. They would need to maintain an A grade through the second half of ninth grade, and complete geometry assignments by the end of the summer before tenth grade.

"Sophomore year would be devoted to honors pre-calculus. Then and only then would they be able to take 'Calc BC' in eleventh grade.

"Superintendent William McDuff praised the program, using the axiom, 'Nothing ventured, nothing gained.'

"It is always a good thing when we can give certain students an opportunity like this. It is an opportunity for students who really have the capacity to accelerate. I have every confidence it will be a success...."

Double click (Burlington)

"The School Committee recently voted unanimously to adopt an 'acceptable use policy' relevant to technological equipment in the schools, designed to safeguard teachers, staff, and students against possible unsavory uses of computers in the system," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The introduction reads in part that the policy 'is enacted by the School Committee to provide the parents, students and staff of the Burlington School Community with a statement of purpose and explanation of the use of technology within the Burlington learning community.

"It further states that there will be an 'Acceptable Use Agreement Form' which all users are required to read and sign before accessing the computer resources, electronic resources, and network infrastructure."

"Retired Computer Coordinator Arthur Fallon

was at this school board meeting, back for a brief time to talk to the board about a proposed five-to-ten-year, $4.7 million technology plan.

"Commenting on the acceptable use policy, Fallon stated, 'I'm very pleased that it is done.'

"Much of it centers on safety, Fallon went on to say.

"You could destroy your career with an error in judgement," Fallon stated. "If an e-mail you thought was private ended up going public, you could be finished...."

Back to School!

Reading Co-op opens its doors at Reading M.H.S.

By MELISSA RUSSELL

READING - It's a concept so fundamentally sound, so elegantly simple, one has to wonder why it hasn't been tried before.

Why not open a local bank branch in a high school and teach students how to manage their own money?

This school year, Reading Memorial High School will do just that, opening Reading Co-Operative Bank's first Learning Branch, to be located on the first floor of the newly remodeled building.

"The reason to have a bank in the building has never been greater," said RMHS principal Joseph Finigan. "In today's economy it is clear that the financial sense of the public is limited. Between the use of money machines and easy credit, it is clear that the public has a limited understanding of the movement of money, spending, saving and borrowing."

The bank branch was the brainchild of Superintendent Patrick Schettini. When approached by Schettini about opening a branch, Reading Co-Operative president and CEO Julieann M. Thurlow said that she couldn't imagine seeing any other town's name on the bank but Reading's, and jumped at the chance.

"It is very exciting for us to be educating our community's teens," she said.

The school bank branch will be an educational facility as well as an actual branch of the Reading Co-Operative Bank, Thurlow said. Students, administrators, staff and faculty will be able to access funds through the branch. Students will receive free checking accounts, and have access to traditional bank products such as ATM and debit cards, passbook and statement savings accounts, online banking, online bill payment, Christmas clubs, CDs, personal, student and auto loans, money orders, and Chamber of Commerce gift certificates.

RMHS juniors and seniors will learn basic principals and practices of banking by participating in the bank operation, Thurlow said. A faculty member in the business department will teach a banking course with topics on banking fundamentals, investing and lending, personal finance literacy, understanding credit, managing debt, and teller training, using the bank branch as a lab. They will also learn a wide variety of marketing concepts and other business concepts, Thurlow said.

"There is so much more to banking than people think," she said. "Investing, loans, collections, technology security; they will learn all about accounting checks and balances, and they will see it all first hand."

One thing the bank won't have is an ATM. It will, however, have a computer café where students can use online banking tools to manage their accounts.

"By having an operating bank it is our hope that students will develop financial literacy," Finigan said. "It is a critical skill in the 21st century and part of our responsibility to our students. This is a program that will grow each year and has limitless capacity for us."

Indeed, Thurlow said she envisions the bank eventually handling funds brought in through sporting events, club activities and fundraisers. In the future, she hopes to see courses on investing and other business and financial necessities, perhaps taught with an online component.

And while students gain the requisite financial skills they will need when they leave school, Thurlow said the program also functions as a recruiting tool for the bank, identifying students who may consider Reading Co-Operative Bank as a place to begin a financial career after graduation.

"We're passionate about banking as a career, and want to pass that appreciation for banking along," she said.

Body image is a concern for students of all ages

For the millions of junior high, high school and college students heading back to school shortly, the idea of returning to the classroom may be met with mixed emotions.

While the school experience is built upon educational advancement, attending school is also largely a social experience. Many students find themselves working as hard to "fit in" as they do to improve their grades. These pressures can take a toll on someone already susceptible to emotional and behavioral conditions, such as depression or anxiety and eating disorders, or trigger feelings in someone who never struggled before. Centers like Timberline Knolls, a 43-acre residential treatment center for women and adolescent girls, want to educate students and parents about potential problems, and let them know assistance is available when necessary.

A common concern of students of all ages is body image. Many students admit to feeling the pressure to have a good body, whether to fit into a certain clique or meet the weight requirements of a scholastic sports team. Others want to emulate their favorite stars they see in movies and on television. Eating disorders like anorexia nervosa and bulimia are growing concerns in schools around the country.

As many as 10 million females and one million males are fighting a life and death battle with anorexia or bulimia and another 25 million are fighting a binge eating disorder, according to the National Eating Disorders Association. Others are exhibiting borderline symptoms of these conditions, including poor attitudes about body weight and food.

Eating disorders are usually shrouded in secrecy, but those who are suffering should realize that reaching out for assistance is the first step to getting back on track.

"We want to share the message of hope and acceptance with students everywhere," says Kimberly Dennis, M.D., Timberline Knolls' medical director. "We show individuals how to take a positive step toward recovery, and educate families on how they can support their loved ones."

Timberline Knolls offers cutting edge psychiatric and psychological therapeutic approaches coupled with constant attention to an individual's strengths and disorders. Their goals are to work with may be suffering from an eating disorder: Exhibits concern about her weight and attempts to control weight by diet, refusal of food, vomiting or laxative and diuretic abuse. Does prolonged exercising despite fatigue and weakness. Has peculiar patterns regarding handling food. May eat in secrecy. Exhibits abnormally fast weight loss, without any other known medical condition. Bulimics might be slightly underweight or overweight.

Experiences depressive moods and self-deprecating behavior.

Middlesex East Real Estate

This week's sampler: The Saddlebrook

Natural light compliments this contemporary home from start to finish

An exceptionally bright, wide open great room is at the core of the Saddlebrook, an impressive country-style home with a contemporary exterior.

Outside, smooth stepped and raised stone caps the stone veneer wainscoting and massive squared columns. A graceful arched opening highlights the lofty porch, while echoing the gentle arched shape of windows over the garage.

Inside, the foyer's 12-foot ceiling is every bit as high as the porch. Double doors on the right open out from the coat closet, while those on the left open into a parlor, windowed on two sides.

The great room is even brighter. Windows fill the wall on both sides of an unusual two-sided gas fireplace that can be enjoyed from the patio, great room and kitchen. Windows fill most of the dining room's rear wall as well.

A raised eating bar bounds a kitchen with counters on four sides. Standing at the kitchen sink, you face into the great room and can keep tabs on backyard activities as well. A large walk-in pantry nestles under the stairs, just past wine racks that line the passageway from kitchen to hallway.

From there, you can choose any of three directions: (1) head past the coat hooks into the three-car garage, (2) go through the pocket door into the generously sized utility room, or (3) proceed down the hallway to secondary bedrooms and a two-section bathroom.

The owners' suite is well away from the other two bedrooms and has its own private patio access. Other amenities include: his and hers walk-in closets, a deep soaking tub, dual vanity, and an enclosed toilet and shower.

An abundance of natural light washes into the bonus room over the Saddlebrook's garage through wide windows on two sides.
